Architecture and the Future: A rising concern and way forward

Webinar Coordinators:

Dr. S.S. JADON (Prof. and Head)

Ar. Richa Mishra (Assistant Professor)

Introduction:

Change is the only constant that we have: with a global pandemic, changing climate and evolving technologies, can we as Architects and planners keep up? Join us from 20th October to 22nd October to learn from esteemed architects and planners how to design and plan for a relatively unknown future.

Some Questions:

Are we equipped to handle this rapidly changing future?

Are we prepared to modify our architectural and urban perceptions, processes and techniques to cater to the new normal?

We should be open to change. Being attuned to the environment around us can help shape a better tomorrow.

The past can become our guiding tool to establish a link between the stakeholders and their collective priorities by questioning the prevailing practices of the time, anticipating the oddities. This lecture series offers insights from esteemed architects and planners to design and plan for a relatively unknown future. It includes discussions about emerging ideas in the fields of Architecture and Urban Design.

Outcomes

 Perception Unfold and interpret multiple dimensions in Architecture and Planning	 Knowledge Enhance your understanding of the Past and the Future of Architecture	 Interact Share your thoughts and questions with the esteemed Speakers
